Art Unit: 1761

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-28 and 38-48 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Lehmann et al (US Patent No. 4957751) in view of Kosikowski (Chapter 8) for the reasons set forth in rejecting the claims in the last Office action. The new claims are not seen to influence the conclusion of unpatentability previously set forth..

Lehmann et al disclose a method of making cheese comprising processing milk to produce cheese curds and whey, removing cheese curds from the whey, collecting fine particles of cheese curd from the whey, adding the fine particles of cheese curd into milk, mixing, and processing (see entire document).

The claims differ as to use of a colloid mill, homogenization, and pasteurization.

Kosikowski discloses mixing/homogenization, and pasteurization as conventional process steps in cheese production (see entire document, especially Table 25).

It is art-recognized that the use of a homogenizer and/or colloid mill serves to mix and decrease particle size.

It would have been obvious to a person of ordinary skill in the art, at the time the invention was made, to use the specific processing steps of Kosikowski in that of Lehmann because the use of mixing and pasteurization is conventional in the cheese art.

It is noted that in the absence of a showing of criticality, the selection of homogenizer type is merely a matter of choice and well-within the skill of the art.

Applicant's arguments filed June 1, 2004 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive.

Applicant argues that there is no motivation to combine the references and that the prior art does not teach "mixing the fine particles of cheese curd from the previous lot of milk into the subsequent lot of milk to form the cheese so as to mechanically reduce the particle size of at least a plurality of the fine particles of cheese curd."

In response to applicant's argument that there is no suggestion to combine the references, the examiner recognizes that obviousness can only be established by combining or modifying the teachings of the prior art to produce the claimed invention where there is some teaching, suggestion, or motivation to do so found either in the references themselves or in the knowledge generally available to one of ordinary skill in the art. See In re Fine, 837 F.2d 1071, 5 USPQ2d 1596 (Fed. Cir. 1988) and In re Jones, 958 F.2d 347, 21 USPQ2d 1941 (Fed. Cir. 1992). In this case, the references are all directed to conventional cheese processing.

It is art-recognized that the use of a homogenizer and/or colloid mill serves to mix and decrease particle size. It is also noted as particle size decreases the total surface area increases.

The Declaration under 37 CFR 1.132 filed June 1, 2004 is insufficient to overcome the rejection of the claims based upon 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as set forth in the last Office action for the following reasons.

- 1.) There is no data to support Applicant's conclusions.
- 2.) Applicant does not compare to the broadest claim. Applicant argues limitations that are not in the independent claims.

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
